

In offering quality academic training and due to a strong customer-orientation, MCI occupies a leading position among institutes of higher education, both in Austria and abroad. As an integral part of the unique 'Open University of Innsbruck' model, MCI bridges university with business by offering graduate, non-graduate and post-graduate programs. Within the expansion of our operations we are inviting applications for the following position:

Academic Assistant in Health Care Management (m/f)

for our MCI-study programs

Nonprofit-, Social- & Health Care Management (BA) International Health Care Management (MA)

The successful candidate will support the study program's faculty in the further development of academic activities – a special expertise in Evaluation, Process Management or Information Management is an asset. The candidate will also be involved in the promotion of collaborative university and business networks and the implementation of projects. The candidate is expected to possess a university degree in business administration with an academic performance above average (master's qualification as a minimum; a doctorate is definite plus), have outstanding didactic, communication, and organizing skills, and an excellent command of English (native speaker or similar). The preferred candidate will have both work and project experience in the field of controlling and/or information management.

General Requirements & Application

The candidates are expected to work as part of a team, be results-oriented and have a general understanding of working in a customer-service oriented environment. These qualities combined with reliability and a commitment to achieving outstanding performance are essential for consideration for this position.

If you are flexible, enjoy solving tasks independently and are able to work under pressure, please send your complete and informative application to Brigitte Auer (office@mci.edu).

In offering quality academic training and due to a strong customer-orientation, MCI occupies a leading position among institutes of higher education, both in Austria and abroad. As an integral part of the unique 'Open University of Innsbruck' model, MCI bridges university with business by offering graduate, non-graduate and post-graduate programs. Within the expansion of our operations we are inviting applications for the following position:

Academic Assistant in Health Politics (m/f)

for our MCI-study programs

Nonprofit-, Social- & Health Care Management (BA) International Health Care Management (MA)

The successful candidate will support the study program's faculty in the further development of academic activities in the areas of (Business) Ethics and Corporate Communications as well as the promotion of collaborative university and business networks and the implementation of projects. The candidate is expected to possess a university degree with an academic performance above average (master's qualification as a minimum; a doctorate is definite plus), have outstanding didactic, communication, and organizing skills, and an excellent command of English (native speaker or similar). The preferred candidate will have both work and project experience in the field of health care.

General Requirements & Application

The candidates are expected to work as part of a team, be results-oriented and have a general understanding of working in a customer-service oriented environment. These qualities combined with reliability and a commitment to achieving outstanding performance are essential for consideration for this position.

If you are flexible, enjoy solving tasks independently and are able to work under pressure, please send your complete and informative application to Brigitte Auer (office@mci.edu).

In offering quality academic training and due to a strong customer-orientation, MCI occupies a leading position among institutes of higher education, both in Austria and abroad. As an integral part of the unique 'Open University of Innsbruck' model, MCI bridges university with business by offering graduate, non-graduate and post-graduate programs. Within the expansion of our operations we are inviting applications for the following position:

Lecturer in Health Care Management (m/f)

The successful candidate shall teach in different areas of operative Health Care Management - a special expertise in Medical Controlling, Finance/Investment or Quality & Risk Management is an asset. The candidate shall also proctor and design examinations, supervise bachelor & master theses, participate in, initiate and lead research projects and support us in further developing and designing our study programs. The candidate is expected to have a PhD-level qualification in the field of Business Administration (specialization in Health Management), to have several years of professional experience especially in teaching and research, outstanding didactic skills, and an excellent command of English (native speaker or similar).

General Requirements & Application

The candidates are expected to work as part of a team, be results-oriented and have a general understanding of working in a customer-service oriented environment. These qualities combined with reliability and a commitment to achieving outstanding performance are essential for consideration for this position.

If you are flexible, enjoy solving tasks independently and are able to work under pressure, please send your complete and informative application to Brigitte Auer (office@mci.edu).